WELCOMED BY NICOLAS SON AZNAVOUR

Paris, Washington DC, Erevan, 12.10.2018, 12:01 Time

USPA NEWS - French President Macron and First Lady, Brigitte Macron, visited the Aznavour Foundation Centre to inaugurate the extensions of future projects. The Armenian President Armen Sarkissian was also here to welcome his French counterpart. The Centre, founded in 2007, by Charles Aznavour French-Armenian singer who passed away, on October 1st, was the son of Armenian migrants who immigrated to France, decades ago. President Macron, expressed, very moved, his admiration to this singer who became one the most influential French singer of all time. Charles Aznavour should have been part of the delegation accompanying the President Macron for the summit of the Francophonie in Yerevan, but fate has decided otherwise ... And it is Nicolas Aznavour, the youngest son, who welcomed the president, and the First Lady, Brigitte Macron.

"He is not at the rendezvous, but he would have wanted it so much": regretted the President Macron Charles Aznavour, with emotion by the son of Charles Aznavour, who died last week. President Macron paid a new tribute Thursday to the singer in his center created in Yerevan to "strengthen Franco-Armenian ties".

President Macron paid a new tribute Thursday to the singer in his center created in Yerevan to "strengthen Franco-Armenian ties". The Aznavour Foundation centre planned to be extended should be a center for "learning, exchanging and create in French" according to the wish of the French President Macron.

A CENTRE WISHED FOR « LEARNING LEARNING EXHANGING AND CREATING IN FRENCH » MACRON SAID

The Aznavour Centre will open its doors following a complete renovation of the building, to be undertaken by architect Aris Atamian. The monument will house an interactive tech museum focused on the life and career of Charles Aznavour, as well as a cultural and educational centre focused on three disciplines: cinema, music and the French language.------

A bunch of French-Armenian celebrities who traveled from France with the French President Macron, attended the ceremony of inauguration, amongst them, Jean Baptiste Lemming Secretary of State for Europe and Foreign Affairs, Patrick Devedjian, President of Conseil Department of Hauts de Seine, Andre Manoukian, musician, Tv animator, Youri Djorkaeff, Footballer"

President Macron expressed his admiration for this legendary singer while regretting his absence today in Yerevan:

"Everything was planned, he would have waited for us, with that deceptively relaxed air that was his."--------

The President continues to say that the most important thing is to maintain Charles Aznavour's "His State of Mind".

Niclas Aznavour, for his part, expressed his attachment to the committed battles of his late lament: "It is obviously a heartbreak for me to present the center without my father at my side", said, very moved, the youngest son 41 years old. "But I'm also grateful to be able to continue his fight." President Macron recalls how much the Franco-Armenian icon was appreciated by the French, but not only: "More than loved, adulated". On this occasion, President Emmanuel Macron and his Armenian counterpart Armen Sarkissian signed a letter of intent to create a French Institute in the center to provide French language courses. Which will be partly taught on the basis of the texts of Charles Aznavour. Some 43,000 young Armenians are currently studying French, but "it's not enough," said Emmanuel Macron.

AZNAVOUR CENTRE INAUGURATED IN 2007 BY SARKOZY WILL BE DEDICATED TO KNOWLEDGE AND CULTURAL EXCHANGE------

President Macron, reminds that Charles Aznavour, was an illustrious ambassador for France globally and , leaves behind a considerable philanthropic legacy. His efforts mobilizing assistance for the victims of the tragic earthquake that struck Armenia on December 7, 1988 left a lasting impression of his dedication to philanthropic work. The artist was also involved in the fight to cure cancer and Alzheimer's disease and, more recently, mobilized to help victims of the earthquake in Haiti.

"France and Armenia are united by a long-shared history, of which the 17th edition of the Francophonie Summit, held in Yerevan this week, is a striking symbol. With the foundation, Charles Aznavour wanted to build a bridge between France and Armenia. In this way, he took a new step forward in his philanthropic work, by committing himself to the promotion of culture, in parallel with his social action. We will pursue its mission even more vigorously than before, in his honor and in his memory" says Kristina Sarkisyan, CEO of the Aznavour Foundation.
